CITY ITEMS.

The ice harvest has begun in earnest. Men are very busy cutting near the "Wreck Northern."

Prof. Crin is now located in the rooms recently vacated by Rush Culver in the Railroad House.

C. P. Blankenhorn is having his market remodeled in neat style. We are always pleased to see improvements made for it shows enterprise.

Miss Minnie Lloyd has returned from Duluth. Her many friends are greatly pleased to see her home again.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Boivin were made happy the fore part of the week by the arrival of a handsome little daughter. Both mother and child are doing nicely, and Sam is all smiles.

It is understood that Mr. Gulch, who has been in the employ of C. P. Blankenhorn for the past few years, has decided to resign his position. His many friends will wish him well wherever he decides to locate.

The Maccabee entertainment at the opera house last Saturday evening was well attended and highly enjoyed. The singing, recitations, etc., were good, and the burlesque, "Initiation of a Candidate," created considerable amusement. It is understood that the boys realized a fair sum of money to add them in realizing their lodge room which was destroyed by the recent fire.

The ladies of the Catholic church during Lent will make arrangements for an elaborate fair to be held immediately after Easter Sunday. The intentions are to build a new church early in the summer. The plans have been completed, and it is thought that before another year the new church will take the place of the little one now facing on Broad street.

Mrs. M. Gizen has certainly had more than her share of trouble and anxiety lately. Her husband had a narrow escape from hemorrhage of the nose a week or so ago, her son Edward sprained his ankle and is laid up, and her son Irvie has been afflicted for the past nine weeks with sore eyes, caused from a gripple. The family have the sympathy of the community in their afflictions.

Monday morning Daniel Denomie and Miss Mary St. Ouge were united in marriage at St. Joseph's church. Rev. Father Jolsten performed the ceremony. Miss Della Bergeone acted as bridesmaid and Joseph Gilmet as best man. A large number of invited guests were present and after the ceremony an elegant wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride. The young couple are well-known here and have a host of friends who unite in wishing them a happy and prosperous journey through life.

Easter Ball.

The A. O. U. W. lodge of this place is making preparations to give a grand ball next Easter Monday. At the last meeting a committee of general arrangements was appointed, consisting of the following members: Philip Voetsch, H. J. Seifert, John Hild, Matt Hansen and P. R. McKernan. Further particulars will be announced when more definite arrangements are completed.

A GRAND SUCCESS.

Such Was the Social Given by the Ladies of the Catholic Church Tuesday Evening.

One of the very pleasant events of the season was the social given at the Lloyd House Tuesday evening under the auspices of the ladies of the Catholic church. At an early hour guests began to assemble and by 9 o'clock the large rooms at the Lloyd House were filled with merry people who proceeded to enjoy themselves in royal style. Among other amusements was a fishing contest, and great mirth was caused when Thomas Brady drew a large "white fish," with all the necessary trimmings, etc. Rev. Father Jolsten also drew several articles which created much laughter. When the hour for supper arrived the guests were seated at tables loaded with choice eatables, to which ample justice was done.

The ladies who conducted the entertainment are entitled to great credit for they had only four days in which to make preparations. Among the ladies in charge was Mrs. M. Gizen, who is always ready on such occasions and who knows just how to arrange matters so that everything will pass smoothly and all present thoroughly enjoy themselves.

The ladies desire to express thanks to one and all who so kindly helped to make the entertainment a success, and especially to Mr. and Mrs. Frenette for the use of the hotel, Prof. Crin and Miss Isabel Bishop for the excellent music furnished.

The proceeds netted about $60.

Card of Thanks.

The ladies of the M. E. church will meet at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Smith this afternoon for the purpose of reorganizing the ladies' sewing circle. They intend giving a fair in the near future.

A very interesting session of the board of supervisors was held yesterday, a full report of which will be given later on. Supervisors Deen, Nester, Schoneberg, Mason, Menge and McDonald were all present. Considerable wrangling over bills of county officers was a feature of the meeting.

One of the most highly enjoyable tramps of the season was taken from the home of the Misses O'Connor by the "Soup" Snow Shoe Club Wednesday evening. To say that the Misses O'Connor excelled as entertainers conveys but a very mild idea of the manner in which the club was entertained by them. The next meeting of the "Soups" will be held at the home of Miss Mertie Tuck.

We learn from good authority that the Huron Bay mill will be operated the coming season by Messrs. Powell & DeHaas, of Marquette. These gentlemen are negotiating for the purchase of about five million feet of logs, and should they not succeed in this they will saw the logs by the thousand.

The funeral services over the remains of the late Maria Shields, held at the M. E. church Monday afternoon, called out a large attendance and the sermon, by the Rev. F. O. Jones, was a very appropriate and touching tribute to the deceased young lady. Among the relatives and friends from the copper country who attended the services were Mr. and Mrs. John Shields, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shields, Mr. and Mrs. John Buchanan, Mr. and Mrs. John Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gillispie, Mrs. Joseph Kerridge, Miss Mary Kerridge, Messrs. Joseph, James, Edward and Erving Shields, Mr. Edward Warm and Mrs. Ann Shields.

LEASES AND REPAIRS.

Peculiar Rules Laid Down for the Tenants of the Astors.

Some of the rules by which the tenants of the Astors are bound are curious. For instance, says the New York Sun, although they will make almost any repairs that a tenant suggests before the lease is signed, even though the repairs may cost more than the rental, they will not spend a cent on the property during the existence of the lease. A lady who rented a house in Forty-fifth street from the Astors was told that she could have any repairs or alterations she wished, but no chandeliers. She had the house decorated from top to bottom, and many expensive repairs made, and there was not a remonstrance, but she had to supply all the chandeliers, at a cost of sixteen hundred dollars, herself. Of course, they remain her property, and she can take them away when she moves.

A curious incident is related by another tenant in Forty-fourth street. She leased a house at a rental of two thousand dollars for one year. When she came to renew the lease for another year she was informed that the rent would be only eighteen hundred dollars. She was told by somebody who pretended to know that the reduction was due to a deterioration in the value of the property, and that the Astors did not want more than a certain interest on it. That, however, was not true, as was learned upon inquiry at the office of the Astor estates. The clerks there said that the reduction was due simply to the fact that during the first year they had charged a percentage for repairs and changes. As none was required the second year the percentage was taken off. Nevertheless, it remains the fact that the reduction was voluntary, and to the tenant unexpected.

GLORY SURPASSING SOLOMON'S

London's Lord Mayor Is a Gorgeous Creature While Arrayed in His Robes.

The fountain of municipal honor in England, says the London Telegraph, undoubtedly springs from the Guildhall, London, which justly claims to be accounted the most ancient of our municipal halls, seeing that the lord mayors of the last eight centuries are with justice assumed to have prototypes in the Roman prefect and the Saxon foretyre or portwyve. For a considerable number of years the robes of the lord mayor, the court of aldermen and the common council have been settled with a precision that none, save the most reckless of innovators, would presume to disturb. The lord mayor himself has his "gold" robe for the annual Guildhall banquet and for the times when he proceeds in state either to the new law courts or to the houses of parliament. The aldermen have their scarlet gowns, the sheriffs their distinctive and very handsome robes and chains, while the common councilors rejoice in gowns called "mazarines," it being generally understood that mazarine is a term for a dark blue color, although, according to some lexicographers, mazarine also means a drinking vessel and an old way of dressing fowls. Then, again, when the sovereign comes into the city the lord mayor is bound to don a robe of crimson or purple velvet, trimmed with ermine. At the time of his investiture, he wears a massive gold chain, but when he is honored by reelection at the expiration of his term of office he wears two chains. The mace of silver gilt, surmounted by a royal crown and the imperial arms, is carried before the mayor by the authority of the charter of Edward III.; while the city possesses no less than four swords, one called the "Pearl," presented by Queen Bess when she opened the first royal exchange, and so called from its being richly set with pearls. This sword precedes the chief magistrate on all occasions of rejoicing and festivity. The sword of state is carried before the lord mayor as an emblem of his sovereignty within the city proper; the "black" sword is used on fast days in Lent and at the death of any member of the royal family; while the fourth sword is that placed close to the lord mayor's chair at the central criminal court.

A RACE OF TOOTHLESS MEN.

Coming Generations Will Have to Masticate by Artificial Means.

There is reason to apprehend that unless some cataclysm occurs to arrest the progress of civilization our descendants will be as toothless as Euprotomus, king of Cyprus, described by the historian Pliny as reduced to masticate his food with a structure of solid bone, in lieu of teeth. This, at any rate, is the opinion of the New York Tribune, is the inference to be deduced from the statistics recently published by order of the British parliament, demonstrating the alarmingly small number of cases of in any way sound dentition among the English people. Of 4,000 children attending the London public schools, there were only 707 who had sound teeth; while during a period of three months 206 recruits were rejected by the medical department of the army for purely dental reasons. Of course, part of this state of affairs is due to neglect of the digestion, and of the teeth themselves, a fact demonstrated by the statement that all the girls who entered domestic service from the London public schools last year five-eighths had never even heard of such a thing as a toothbrush—an assertion that has led the educational authorities to institute in many of the metropolitan schools what is now known as the "toothbrush drill."

Decay of teeth has always attended the advances of civilization and each barbaric invasion has been followed by a recovery of sound teeth in the old world. Under the circumstances it might be worth while to consider whether the repeal of the Geary law and the opening up of the United States to a pacific invasion on the part of the Chinese might not go far to improve the American jaw, which, according to medical experts, is in an immeasurably worse condition than that of the English—a fact probably due to our superior civilization.

A Jury on a Strike.

The most remarkable case in Texas legal history was tried recently at Oakland before Justice English—Mrs. Ella Halloway vs. J. H. Van Alstyne, says a Houston correspondent of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. The case consumed the day and was given to the jury at night. Before retiring the jury demanded that each man be paid his fifty-cent fee. The justice demurred and ordered them to bring a verdict or they would get no fee. The jury retired and in fifteen minutes entered court. They had a sealed verdict. Before turning it over to the justice the jury struck for their hard-earned fees. Under protest the justice gave each juror fifty cents. He opened the verdict, which read: "The jury cannot agree." This enraged the court. He demanded the fifty cents each juror had been paid. The jury refused and the court ordered them locked up until a verdict was given pro or con. After being out another hour the jury reported that they were still unable to agree. Judge English then demanded the return of the fees. The jurors refused to surrender and a fine of two dollars and fifty cents each was assessed and their incarceration ordered. A compromise was finally reached by four of the jury returning the fees and the other two paying the fine of two dollars and fifty cents. The higher courts will be inflected with the case.

Watch this Space for things Worth Knowing About Hanging

- WALL PAPER. -

How to estimate the quantity of wall paper required for a room: Add the length of the two sides and ends together, which will give you the distance around the room; multiply by the height, which will give you the number of square feet; deduct from this 18 for each opening; divide the remainder by 66 and the result will be the number of rolls of paper required.

For ceiling—multiply the length by the width and divide by 66, which will give the number of rolls, divide the distance around the room by 3, which will give the number of yards of border required.
